

MRS. BOYLE

(Stern and demanding, the boisterous know-it-all Mrs. Boyle openly shares her displeasure and disappointment.)

Really! What an incredible young woman! Doesn't she know anything about housework? Carrying a carpet sweeper through the front hall. Aren't there any back stairs? Anyway, all the housework should have been done in the morning before lunch. All very haphazard and amateurish. There should be a proper staff. The lower classes seem to have no idea of their responsibilities!
